PRESIDENT'S REPORT

It's certainly been a trying year for us all with Covid and its restrictions. I can't believe how quickly this year has gone. I hope 2022 will bring us all a better way of life than what we have had over the past two years.

The weather lately has been very unusual for this time of year. The rain, clouds and cool days are not what we know of summers past. It is a good idea to watch your orchids during this time as wet, then sunny days, can lead to rot in your orchids, especially cymbidiums.

Our December meeting will be our Christmas Party and Presentation night. A good time of year to enjoy each other's company and congratulate the winners of our Annual Benching Competitions. At the moment I am putting some questions together for a Trivia quest. The questions will be a mixture of orchid and general knowledge, so come with your thinking caps on!!

Towards the end of the evening we have our Giant Raffle which is always a lot of fun. It would be very much appreciated if you could please bring along a gift for the raffle. And, if you have all been good through the year there might even be a visit from Santa.

A new Growing Competition seedling – an Australian Native Orchid, will be available at our December Meeting at a cost of $5. Françoise purchased these for our society on a recent trip to Wayne Turville's nursery at Tyabb in Victoria. Thank you Françoise.

I mentioned last month that our Newsletter Editor Teresa, is unable to continue in this role due to family and work commitments. Teresa has done a wonderful job in creating a newsletter each month. We are hoping that a member may like to volunteer to help our society by being our new editor. I know Teresa has enjoyed this role and it is certainly one you can put your 'own stamp' on.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank our Committee who continue to do a wonderful job. At our last Committee Meeting we discussed next year's agenda including a roving day, potting day, native orchid walk in Spring and hopefully a bus trip.

Thank you members who help-out through the year by placing tables and chairs out, assisting at suppers etc. It all helps to make our meetings run smoothly.

I wish all members and their families a Merry Christmas and a safe and Happy New Year, especially members who are unwell and can not make it to meetings. We are thinking of you.

Roll on 2022

Warm regards,
Louise

GROUNDS FOR DIVORCE

Lynne Phelan

No, I didn't spend the week's grocery money on an expensive orchid but there comes a time when almost every hobby orchid grower decides, "Enough is enough!" The collection has exceeded the capacity of the growing space. This often comes in late spring after the annual repotting and dividing of orchids results in a space crisis in the orchid house. It is time for a 'conscious uncoupling' as Gwyneth Paltrow said, or even, a 'rapid disassembly' as Julia Roberts called her quickie divorce. *

Here are some of my criteria for deciding what orchids must leave home.

Duplicates - This is easy. After dividing orchids, the spare/s can be sold (S*), donated (D) for society raffles or gifted (G) to friends. I usually keep a back-up plant for rare or valuable orchids but (if space is critical) you can give a division to a trusted friend so if you lose yours you may be able to get a piece back. Make sure the divisions have re-established before you move them on.

Non-flowerers - Sometimes, no matter what you do, the orchid makes multiple growths and gets repotted every couple of years, gets moved around the growing areas, gets lots of attention (usually positive for a few years and then negative) but still never produces a flower. It may be that someone else's growing area will suit it better or it may just be a dud. Disposing of this one should come with a disclaimer citing its reluctance to flower so the buyer/recipient is aware of the problem. You could sell/donate it without but that's not a very nice or ethical thing to do to a fellow orchid hobbyist.

Space Gobblers - This is not a problem for everyone but, when you are trying to downsize, the very large plants in big pots and/or with expansive foliage must come into contention in the divorce stakes. You need to weigh up how much joy each one gives you against the bench space it occupies. I sadly parted with a lovely Vanda Rothschildana recently because it was so big it totally blocked access to part of the shadehouse. I've also parted with the largest divisions of some cattleyas and kept a smaller, flowering size piece for myself.

Ho-Hums - These are the orchids that don't bring an immediate, "Not that one!" response when you are casting about for some extra space. They aren't bad but they don't make your heart sing. It may be something you were interested in but now your tastes have changed. It may be that it is quite similar to another, more superior orchid, so choose to keep the better one and S, D or G the Ho-Hum.

Sicky-Poos - Sometimes an orchid goes into decline and, no matter what you try, it just clings to life and demands full time intensive care but never responds. Bin (B) it!

Suss plants - If it looks like it might have a virus, get it checked or B!

The Nameless - Unless it is an exceptional plant which I cannot live without, orchids without names are high on the list of plants to come before the divorce court. Usually the loss of a name is my fault by losing a label or allowing the writing to become illegible. If I know for certain what it is when it flowers I can make a new label but if it is a hybrid and I am not certain then S, D or G with Genera Unknown on the tag. I'm off to Court!

* Disclaimer: I don't read celebrity magazines: I just looked for something silly on the internet.

 Commercial orchid growers have to earn a living from their orchid sales but I think society sales tables should enable members to add to their collections at 'mate's rates' so that's how Brian and I price our plants.

New Plant ID Card System

In 2022 we will see a new plant ID card system introduced for benching, making it much simpler for those who do the count and calculate the results. The tokens will still be used by members to vote. More information to follow.

NOVICE CORNER

John Clancy is our Novice Corner Coordinator. Members who have a cultural problem or any questions about their orchids are invited to speak to John. If it is not within John's area of expertise he will refer you to another grower who may be able to help. If there is a particular topic you would like to have covered in Novice Corner please feel free to contact John on 4443 9072 or email john.clancy50@me.com.

LOOKING FORWARD TO

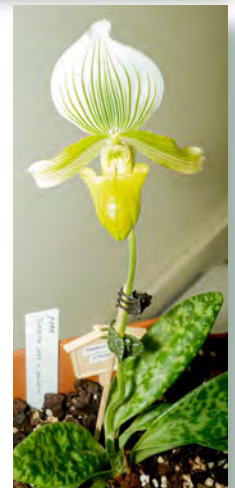

The committee has proposed several events for 2022 COVID permitting, of course. These are:

- ◇ a roving day,
- ◇ a potting day,
- ◇ a bus trip and
- ◇ a guided walk,

Watch this space, More information to follow in 2022.
